EDITORIAL

Firstly, welcome back all full-time and part-time students to the last stretch of Autumn semester. Barph hopes you had an enjoyable May vacation break.

External Schools

External Schools held over the May holidays went exceptionally well, the external students appreciating the various entertainment and free morning and afternoon teas provided by the Union.

Fight-Back campaign

On May 13th, students from all round the State attended a fight-back rally held in Canberra to protest against the Razor Gang's decisions especially in regards to education cut-backs.

Three carloads of students from Rivcoll attended to march in the rally that left ANU ending at Parliament House. Thanks to all the Rivcoll students who attended - it was interesting to note that all the Rivcoll demonstrators bar two were women - good on you girls!

AUS.

AUS are currently launching a $100,000 education fight-back fund to persuade the government to re-think its reduced funding in the educational sector. Likewise the ACTU are also launching a $1,000,000 fight-back campaign against the Razor Gangs recommendations.

Goulburn Amalgamation

At this stage the amalgamation between Goulburn and wagga is still proceeding. After the Razor Gang's report the College Council and in particular the Principal are now seriously questioning whether or not they can make the amalgamation work. This is due to the reduced funding that the combined Colleges will receive from the Frazer Government during the next few years.

However it appears that the State Government is still pursuing amalgamation at this stage.

Next week the Hagan Committee which has been empowered to oversee the smooth operation of the amalgamation, will be in Wagga and will be taking submissions from persons who are willing to contribute to the Committee.

If you are willing to make a submission about this College or the amalgamated College then please do so next week.

College Council

This week the good news about the College Council (next week the bad news). At the meeting of the College Council held on the 8th May at Albury, College Council unanimously approved my motion condemning the Federal Government for its educational cutbacks and its introduction of tertiary fees for students who are undertaking second and post-graduate courses

Well done College Council!

Conservatism/Right Wing Governments

The Sydney Morning Herald on Saturday 23rd May and the Sun Herald the following day, carried many articles that, when put together, means that the established press are now questioning in depth the motives and the actions of conservative governments.

This is a rather radical step, especially for a normally conservative paper such as the Herald to undertake.

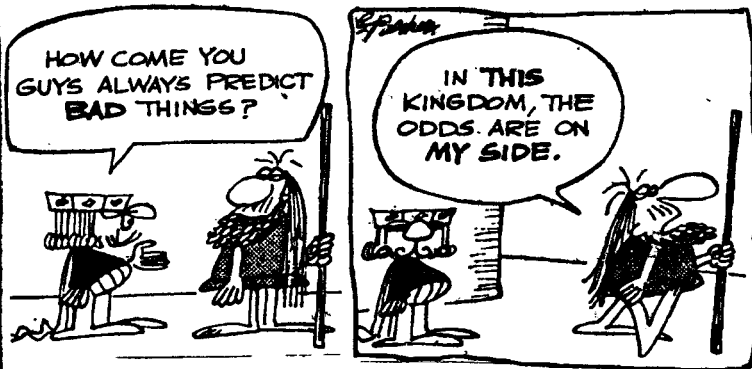

For example, I will mention a number of articles and what they said without adding my own personal comments.

In America the Reagan administration are now embracing the Moonie cult that has been known in the past for its subversion, indoctrination and kidnapping methods to gain recruits. Sun Myung Moon of the Moonies is becoming more "respectable" to America as a religion due to their ever-growing billion dollar religious and financial empire.

In Australia the Government is now questioned about a possible secret treaty allowing the Americans to carry nuclear weapons into Australia. The reason for this is the disclosure this week about a secret agreement between the Japanese government and American Government that has just been learned about. The parallels between Australia and its Darwin base and the events in Japan are almost identical.

Another article stated how the Menzies Government hoodwinked the Australian people into believing that Australia was invited to help in Vietnam when in actual fact it was the Australian Government who forced themselves to be included in the Vietnam war.

Still another article looks at the implications of the current bank mergers and states that by the Federal Government allowing "competition from highly aggressive, profit hungry foreign banks" will mean in the long run far less service to its customers and will increase the interest rates and decrease the availability of loans for ordinary people (while diverting its money to the so-called resources boom). It asks what is the Federal Government attempting to do by deregulating the banks?

Lastly Saturdays Herald looks again at the Hilton Hotel bombing mystery and asks the question who really did plant the bomb? The article goes on to express its opinion that they believe the Ananda Marga were framed by Australian Intelligence for the bombing. It also asks in depth who really planted the bomb and directs the reader to believe that it was really planted possibly by the Australian Intelligence organisations (but not meant to explode) to make political capital out of the incident.

It is interesting to see the Herald coming to similar conclusions as a student publication printed by the students of U.N.S.W. that was published just after the Hilton bombings. They, at the time stated that Malcolm Frazer was behind the bombings but the Herald's article does not go quite that far.

What do you think?
Till next week.

COME TO CHATEAU BALI!!!

Your home away from home (unless you come from Bali that is).

For only $550 you can have your piece of paradise. This is what we have to offer:-

- Beautiful Sun drenched beaches (water drenched in the monsoon season)
- Beautiful water drenched surf (that figures)
- Beautiful (ugly) old hagglers who'll sell you the shirt off your back (try getting a suntan in peace) and massage every part of your body with foul-smelling peanut oil that'll make you smell like pig on a spit.
- Beautifully unkept hospitals that you don't dare put a foot into without fear of having it cut off (they refer to it as amputation over there, too).
- Beautiful Balinese women who you can propose (what you propose to them is entirely up to you) and bring back to Australia (in fact I've got the address of this young Balinese woman who lives at Tanah Lot, if you're interested).

CHATEAU BALI - CONTINUED.

- And Beautiful, comfortable bungalows with comfy beds and pillows to sleep on, not shithouse dives like 'Anom Dewi' where we stayed most of the time (you lucky buggers).

Things you can do while in Bali:-

- Hire a bike and take your chances with Kamikazi drivers on the roads (we did, and look at us).
- Be even more daring... sit in a bus and experience the Kamikazi driving First Hand (we did...and no don't bother).
- Haggle with the natives and see whose patience snaps first, yours or theirs.
- Go snorkling in the coral reefs on the north side of the island and cut your klutzy hands and feet like I did.
- Learn the magic words "Tee Duck Myong" and "Go Jiggy jig ayam puku!" which are both guaranteed to send hagglers away at the speed of light (the latter phrase is also guaranteed to leave the natives also very shitty with you, it means 'Go root a fighting cock!')

Yes, you too can score a big win on the cockapools (ouch) at Denpasar; just like these bright upstanding Riverina College dropouts did! All you need is money, a cock (no, I'm not being dirty), the gambling fever and a lot of dumb luck

This genuine post card scene depicts one of the latest high rise markets (3 stories) being constructed at Sunny Singhiraja, using the latest, most innovative Balinese architectural techniques.

This genuine fat bellied sow's brother-in-law on her sisters side gave us all a bad case of the shits after eating it

All rat bagging aside folks, Honey Holidays are a top group to book with, you'll have a great time over at Bali, just like we did.

Better actually, there'll be: no monsoon rains, better accommodation, better surf. Uh - how much did you say it was again Johnno?

Letters

Dear Ed,

During the vacation, (particularly at the wine and cheese nights) I had a chance to meet a great many of the students who came to college for their residential schools. As a result I was able to get some idea of their particular needs and difficulties.

Similarly, I'd like to have a better idea of your needs and difficulties, so please drop in and visit me. My office is on the ground floor of Doman Building, next to Student Medical Services.

*Gray Ardern

Dear Barphers,

College Board has just found a new name for our never-rest assessment system; "periodic assessment". Which, by analogy to certain honest bodily functions, is clearly a very apt name.

For these trials of life, a. happen about once a month, b. involve sweating blood, c. can be accompanied by pains and loss of vigour, d. guarantee, while they continue, that nothing too embarrassingly creative is going on inside.

They also finally stop of their own accord when the years have allowed fertility to depart. It is anticipated that graduation will soon come to be known as "the menopause".

Yours in Absurdity,
H O Cacophonix

Dear Barph,

In the three years since I graduated from Rivcoll there have been a number of discernable changes. One thing that emerges from my open day visit to R.C.A.E is that no longer does administration care for the students of the College. The students in the campus caravan park, have one toilet among about fifteen tenants and no washing or showering facilities at all.

Come on Rivcoll, your standards have slipped I was disappointed by what I saw.

Geoff Chatham (former student)

Dear Editor,

With the Space Age, so too has sanitation arrived at RIVCOLL. By the time a manned landing on the sun is completed so too will the on-campus caravan park be in possession of a sophisticated shuttle toilet, which it is believed, will be capable of being used up to one hundred times.

Remember, the year 3,000 is not as far off as some would wish us to believe.

Wing Commander

Her Majestys 5th Royal
Sanitors (retired)

Dear Sir,

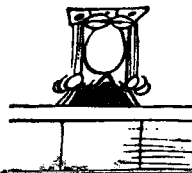

I am writing as an interested visitor to the Wagga Wagga area. I was fortunate enough to have arrived in Wagga on your Open Day and I enjoyed an enlightening two hour guided tour of the College with my husband who graduated from RCAE three years ago. I wasn't positively impressed by all that I encountered however. I was disgusted at the standard of amenities offered at your own campus caravan park. How those young people can continue to live in those conditions is beyond me. My husband tells me the caravan park was advertised as having full facilities. What a shock the newly arrived first year students must have received. This can only harm the reputation of your fine College.

Quite some time has passed since my visit so I expect full facilities are being enjoyed by all, at this point in time - if this is the case, please accept my full apologies.

Sincerely yours,
Barbara Chatham

QUASAR

Quasar is a Brisbane-based contemporary band that is slowly gaining recognition around Australia. As is the case with most off the straight and narrow groups, Quasar lack the money and agency support to promote its activities. Often the public at large misses out on seeing and hearing the group as they flit in and out of venues without the fanfare of TV, press and radio announcements.

The current line-up is Len Henderson on guitar, Barry Tiplady on bass and Trevor Tiplady on drums.

The band is from Queensland and the music is formed of fire, pulse and passion. Drums and cymbals make positive and definitive individual statements while guitar and bass sometimes carry the rhythm and sometimes sing and growl and grunt like horns (Michael Foster, Canberra Times).

This is no New Wave band smashing out basic chords in an orgy of superficial aggression. Quasar's musical violence is real - all the more potent for being contained.

The musical direction in which Quasar is travelling is leading to exploration of themes 'closer to home' than the earlier intergalactic sojourns, though incorporating no less dynamism or energy. Some of the newer compositions convey their Australian experience, while others seek to express man's inner self.

ACTIVITIES REPORT

Trivia Quiz - Its on again!

The Second Annual World Trivia Championship is presented by Mike Lynch International and Wallace J Murray Promotions to raise funds for the Turtles (Hockey Club) to compete in the national intercol.

Turtle stalwart Mike Lynch is in town on vacation from Newcastle Uni, where he is now doing a Dip Ed.

Mike is a real Master of Trivia, and those who attended last year's event will know what a good quiz he conducts.

So get a table together to compete in the Quiz in the Union on Wednesday nite. There's some great prizes to be won.

Martial Arts Course

It is proposed to conduct a "Basic Introduction to Martial Arts" course.

The course which will be co-ordinated by the Pak Hok Club.

The course will run for four weeks on Wednesday and Friday evenings (6-8pm) beginning on June 3 in the College Gym

The instructors for the Martial Arts course will be the Pak Hok Club's instructor Tane (from Sydney) and club co-ordinator and well-known RTC actor, Peter Hulme (brother of Mark)

The levy for the course will be $10 - the remainder of the course will be subsidised by the Union.

The basic introduction to Martial Arts course is designed to introduce students to pak hok, tai chi, karate and yoga.

It is a good opportunity for any students interested in self-protection or even just in exercise to gain valuable introduction to the fundamentals of the sport. The course is suitable for both males and females.

It should also prove to be good promotion for the Pak Hok Club.

For further details and an enrolment form please see Activities Officer, Rod Gillett in the Union Office.

Quasar

EC present a band with a difference this Thursday nite in the Union.

Quasar play a brand of music that can best be described as "jass rock".

It should be an interesting band - more to listen to than to dance to.

And another date to keep in mind is the ROMAN BALL on June 11.

Film Club

The Film Club presents a classic movie this Sunday nite - "PAPILLION" in the Swan Theatre. It is an epic account of a French prisoner's escape from a prison in Africa.

"I can promise you honesty and integrity in Government", announced Liberal Party Leader Malcolm Fraser in November 1975. "I'd like to have a Government which people can trust."

There will be no international safaris by members of Parliament. Australian does not need a tourist as Prime Minister. (November 27, 1975). In the first two-month parliamentary recess almost a quarter of a million dollars was spent on trips by federal parliamentarians, their wives and staff. Mr Fraser's total for his first three years was 13 trips. Mr Peacock made well over 20. Mr Whitlam, who was Foreign Minister as well as Prime Minister, made 13 trips in his term of office.

The real value of pensions will be preserved. (November 27, 1975). The real value of pensions has in fact been significantly reduced. Since Fraser took office there has been no adjustments in rent assistance, dependent child's allowance, orphans' pensions, guardian's allowances or family allowances. As a result, pensioners receiving these allowances are up to $5 per week worse off than in 1975.

We stand by our commitment to abolish the means test on pensions. (November 27, 1975). In the 1978 Budget, an income test was re-introduced for pensioners over 70.

Urban programs will be continued. (November 27, 1975). Many, such as the Area Development Program were discontinued. Others were drastically cut back. Expenditure on growth centres was cut in one year, 1976-77, from $71.8 million to $15 million.

A Liberal-National Country Party Government will initiate a new deal for migrants. (November 27, 1975). In virtually every major area of migrant welfare there has been a decline in allocations and a consequent run-down of services. Most severely hit have been education services, special migrant welfare services and the office of the Commissioner for Community Relations.

We will not disrupt essential programs or programs for which contracts have been let. (November 27, 1975). Contracts cancelled during Fraser's first year of office totalled $60 million. The 1977 Budget cancelled expenditure on the national sewerage program in every state. The water resources program was abandoned. Pipeline Authority construction, for which contracts had been let, were cut by 43.4 percent. Possibly, to Mr Fraser, these also were not essential.

We will work positively in co-operation with trade unionists. (November 27, 1975). From its handling of numerous industrial disputes, the Government appears rather to have actively confronted and provoked the trade unions. The hasty passage of the Commonwealth Employees Act and the establishment of the Industrial Relations Bureau — which gives the Government sweeping dictatorial powers over unionists — were not seen as either co-operative or positive.

We will abolish the Prices Justification Tribunal... during the first session of the new parliament. (November 27, 1975). Nine parliamentary sessions later, the PJT is still alive. Just Axed by the Razor Gang.

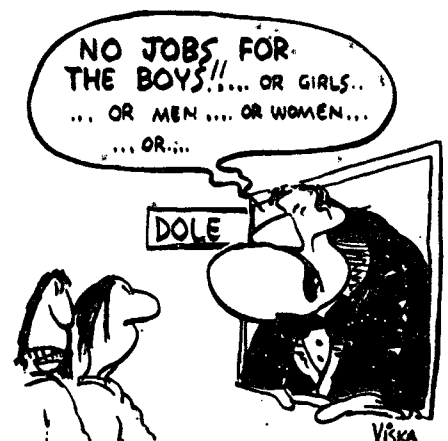

We shall ensure that no person is denied legal aid because of lack of means. (November 27, 1975). Despite some minor changes in 1978, the legal aid situation remains inadequate. Many pensioners and others living below the poverty line still cannot meet the stringent requirements for legal aid.

From February 1st, 1978, further tax cuts will come in for every Australian wage and salary earner... The Government will bring taxes down further — not increase them. (November 21, 1977). For most wage and salary earners the supposed savings were taken away virtually immediately through indirect taxes and increased health insurance payments. In the next Budget, six months later, taxes were in fact increased by a 'temporary' 1.5 percent surcharge. Taxes overall have steadily increased under Fraser.

From February 1st (1978), more than 225,000 low income earners will cease to pay any tax at all. (November 21, 1977). Direct income tax may have been eliminated for some, but these savings were wiped out by health insurance charges and/or increased indirect taxes. Many were soon paying direct income tax again as wages rose in the absence of full tax indexation.

Our reforms will maintain the purchasing power of wages and ease the pressure for excessive wage demands. (November 27, 1975). Precisely the opposite has taken place. The wage demands in the Victorian power dispute and the petrol tanker drivers' dispute, to take two examples, were prompted largely by the erosion of real wages through the Government's opposition to full wage indexation.

We will ensure the standard of health care does not decline... Particular stress will be placed on meeting the needs of the disadvantaged including... Aboriginal children. (November 27, 1975). The abolition of Medibank has made access to adequate health care much harder for many. The incidence of disease amongst Aboriginal children and Aboriginal infant mortality remain appallingly high.

CLUB NEWS

OUTDOOR CLUB

REPORT ON OUTDOORS CLUB WEEKEND WALK.

On the weekend preceeding Easter, the Outdoors Club trekked 25 or so kilometres through Kosciusko National Park. The walk began at Mt Selwyn ski lift on the Saturday Morning after a night camped by Three Mile Dam. From the ski lift we walked to Four Mile Creek hut. Here we ate and read tales of hardship, hunger and fried Bogong moths in the hut's log book. The huts are maintained by the Kosciusko Huts Assoc., a voluntary organisation, and are frequently used by cross country skiers during winter. Our stop for the night was at another hut at Broken Creek Dam.

The wild dogs that howled from distant (and not so distant) hills didn't get us so Sunday morning saw half of us scale Tabletop Mtd on the north face (it was the closest). A fire trail proved useful, leaving us with a ten minute walk to the summit. The remaining members diverted to the old Nine Mile Gold Diggings and on reforming we headed back to Mt Selwyn.

The route taken on the walk followed a cross country ski course. During winter the Outdoors Club is planning a beginners day of skiing which will be followed by weekend trips. Keep an eye on Barph for details of Outdoor Club meetings.

KEITH SWANICK

MUSIC EDUCATOR

Keith Swanick, Professor of Music Education at London University will visit Riverina Music Centre for three days in May in order to work with local music groups and to talk to private music teachers, Music Centre Staff and school teachers with a special interest in music.

Professor Swanick is a pianist, organist and brass player but is more widely known as a conductor and educator.

He has a substantial list of publications in the field of Music Education ranging from articles on the philosophy and psychology of music to books on Popular Music and, more recently, "A Basis for Music Education". He is also an examiner for a number of awards in music and music education and acts as a consultant and adviser to a number of bodies in Britain. He has lectured widely in the U.K., Canada and Brazil. His research interests are mainly in the areas of aesthetics and curriculum developments of musician schools.

Professor Swanick brings to his work considerable experience of music and music teaching in Schools and in Adult Education.

Keith Swanick's Australian visit is promoted by the Australian Society for Music Education (A.S.M.E.) He will be a guest speaker at the A.S.M.E. Conference in Melbourne in May.

He is coming to Riverina Music Centre (Wagga Wagga Branch) as an Artist-in-Residence at Riverina College. All of Professor Swanick's sessions are open to the public. Teachers (of all kinds) are especially invited to attend the Thursday evening session at which he has been invited to address us on the role of music in contemporary society. Each of us, whether we work with music in the classroom or in private studios, should gain a great deal from Professor Swanick's Public Address. Of course, we will have a chance to meet each other both in the lecture room and later, over supply.

LIBERATION

Mens Liberation - the Phallic Package to Those Brothers whom it May Concern,

It is becoming depressingly obvious that men's bodies are being exploited. In their search for financial gain multi-national companies are dismembering (Parden the pun) our torsos in flagrant commercial avarice. Take, for example, any female deodorant container - is this not phallic? Heaven knows to what vile purposes they are put to when empty - are they yet another attempt to make the male obsolete?

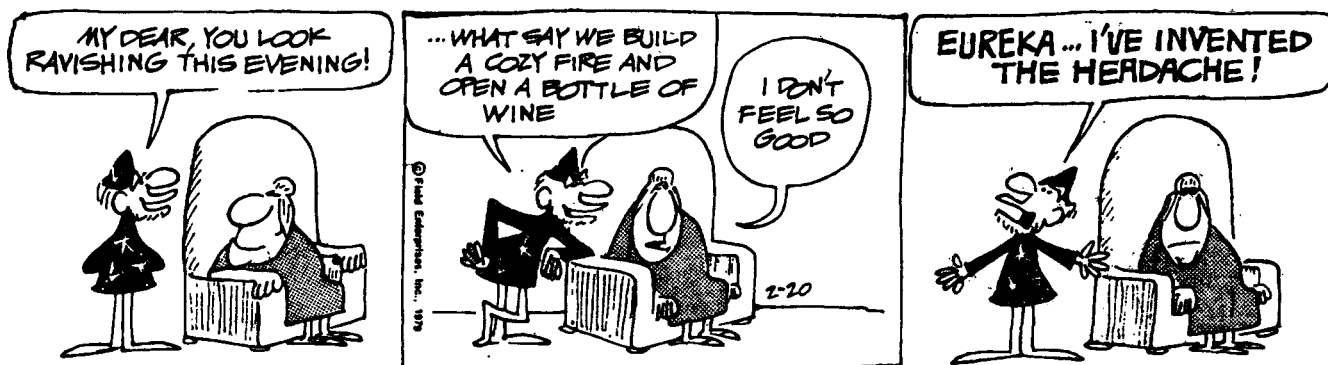

In fact this particularly malignant form of sexism is not restricted to the deodorant field; the hairdryer is another obvious manifestation. To see one particular brand, coquettishly entitled the "Hot Banana", as anything other than a penis symbol is nothing short of a perversion. The veritable penis-symbol of subberbia is reaching plague proportions. Everywhere a

This second choice is, however, costly, painful and extraordinarily silly.

Hence, my brother colleagues and I sat down at the bar to drink a square glass of the local embalming fluid watching a young female staring entranced at the Galliano Bottle with obvious optimism (not to mention egotism) to discuss the problem of eliminating packaging (the second option being unanimously disregarded).

The brothers suggested square being a good shape as, indeed, it is not longer than it is wide. This was unfortunately rejected after a few more rounds, on the grounds that we are a non-sexist organisation, and square in a pun on 'box'.

Several more rounds brought, along with a certain lucidity, the idea of round packaging. These however, could not be placed together, so that they would not only be phallic, but uneconomical.

man looks (or a woman stares) is a phallic symbol. All packaging is phallic, especially edibles such as carrots, zucchini, musc rollers, finger buns, toffee rolls - the list goes on forever.

To see a woman drinking milk through a straw is a sight to frighten most men into impotence. Seen the moove milk ads? The obviously ecstatic look on the womans face? Certainly she is not selling milk - it is the straw which is the focal point.

Even nature has jumped on the bandwagon to oppress men - it is obvious that this is a female orientated force, why else would it be called "Mother Nature". It is a startling realization that oppression of the male has been going on since time immoral.

In order to reverse this trend there are two options open to us brothers:-

1. Stop Phallic packaging
2. Remove the cause of the problem.

are sexist unless balanced on their points with the base up. This sounded remarkably smutty; as well the brothers had the unfortunate feeling that, if made into a beerglass the said receptacle would fall over and the contents spill all over the bar.

On this rather depressing note it was eventually decided from a horizontal point of view to have hexagonal packaging. The compiled pun that hexagons have faces which perverted people would equate with 'Head' had to be disregarded due to the gradual ability of the brothers to be able to sit transfixed and to cease breathing for remarkable lengths of time:- but not before we had pondered the inexplicable mysteries of the tequila ad of lip, sip and suck, and why the pen is not called the vag?

Yours in solidarity - see you at the mens lib keg at the Rotunda Friday week.

Matt - Pres. Mens Lib.

BUSHPIG BUSINESS

Well, there goes another set of holidays. As usual they took their toll on the Pigs. A big thanks goes out to all those that helped us out during the break.

We started off bad in the holidays by going down to Barrellan at Barrellan. The next week we played Boree Creek at home. The seconds defeated the Creekers after battling with only 14 men against 18. The firsts showed guts, they were forced to use a number of seconds players, but still got up.

However our victory cries turned sour when the Creekers protested against us breaking a MINOR technicality, therefore, we lost our points. PISS WEAK

Next we played SWTD. Although we put up a good fight, POSTING's boys got up in both grades.

Last Saturday, the Pigs forfeited the seconds. Everyone was greatly disappointed as many regulars did not turn up and most people should have been back anyway. Well the firsts got up, thats a consolation.

TRAINING THIS WEEK. EVERYONE BE THERE.
TUES STH CAMP. 5-7PM. THURS NTH CAMP. 5-7

Well one of the old boys leaves us, Mal Vogan is off to Yass to take up a new job. Thanks for coming Mal, good luck.

On a concluding note, who were those red-eyed bunch seen leaving a house in Fox Street early Sunday morning.

RED RUGBY

Both teams, though defeated performed far better on Saturday than they have for the majority of the season so far. Team spirit was high and the players attitude will be right for the big game on Thursday. Second grade Reddies were beaten in an extremely entertaining game with the ball flowing well. No doubt more clean balls to our backs would have seen far different results - Best on the day was Andrew Curnow. Score: Waratahs 22 d. Reddies 14.

Manager: Narelle Watt Scorer: Julie O'Keeffe
Umpire: Michael Wynne Coach: Barrie O'Keeffe

The College now has two teams in the Town Competition. The A Grade comprising of Peter Reynolds, Alan Norris, Justin Byrnes and Doug Stewart is to play as usual in town on the Thursday night with the A Reserve team comprising of Gary Green, David Jones, Jim Pratley and John Louis, playing alternately on Monday nights at the College courts commencing at 7pm. So any players intending to play on these Monday nights, please check the after-hours book as to the duration of the competition draw.

There has been a general slackening off in the Campus competition. Results of matches will have to be arbitrarily ruled off if no effort is made to complete matches, so for the sake of your team and your own fitness please expedite. Remember, if you make the effort and the other party is unresponsive go straight to the result sheet and write down 3-0 in your favour.

Further details of Squash Club activities are to be published in RACE.

G Green

First Grade performed better than any other time this season. Only the goal kicking let them down. The side was depleted with a few key backs missing. No doubt the full side will fire on Thursday. Best for Reddies was Chris Watkins. Waratahs 15, Reddies 4. Remember players meeting Tuesday night after training. SUPPORT is required for the clash, AGGIES V. CHALKIES on Thursday in the common lunch hour 12-2. No excuse for missing the biggest event of the year. So come along to main campus oval and watch the Red Devils walk all over the Aggies.
