Passing the Whale

School of Environmental science students gathered on Monday the 13th to enjoy another Passing of the Whale where students toast the end of the year and send out good vibes to graduating whales as they head off into the next chapter of their careers and lives.

With good vibes being busted out by local ukulele band Grooveyards, participants enjoyed a relaxing afternoon and evening. Giant jenga rounds tested peoples engineering skills with an awesome BBQ supplied by the G to top off a chilled out and relaxing evening at what is a stressful time of year for most students.

Attendees marked a log that will be donated to the CSU wetlands as a reminder of the 2014 year, students who missed out can still make an engraving by contacting Charlie Eager at Charlie.eager@gmail.com. Thanks to Tom from the G for organising the BBQ, the MCC for helping out with the band and wishing all school of environmental scientists good luck with their final exams and assignments.
