'Survival week – how to survive uni life'

Thurgoona Campus from 23rd - 27th March.

A BBQ will be operating on 24th March from 11am – 2pm at Thurgoona campus.

What is Survival Week?

Two years ago it was realised that students struggle after four to five weeks of university, when reality sets in. Students face all sorts of trials and tribulations associated with leaving home and commencing University life and may discover a range of issues never faced before: problems such as generally looking out for themselves, drugs, alcohol, budgeting and loneliness are just a few. It was decided to bring community support teams back onto campus during this time to assist students with any problems.

Uni Bible Study

Uni Bible Study has had an exciting start to the year. O-week activities were enjoyed by new and old students alike.

Noreuil Park was the place to be on the Tuesday afternoon. We had a relaxed arvo of fun, free food and some amateur kayaking.

MARKET DAY

The Photo Scavenger Hunt was our biggest challenge of the week, as teams raced to capture a variety of random pictures around Thurgoona campus/res. After climbing trees, doing handstands and catching buses to pose with the driver, we found it a relief to capture an image of “peace.” After the shoot, we had a display of the pictures and had a free feed.

Uni Bible Study has started meeting together on campus. This term we're studying Colossians, which is a letter written to some of the early Christians. It reminds us of how Jesus will rescue us and forgive us when we trust in Him.

Come and join us at 3:30pm on Wednesdays to hear a Bible talk, have a chat and some free arvo tea. New location Room 111 Thurgoona campus (near Blake lecture theatre).

Nest Box Monitoring for Threatened Species

21/22 March 25/26 April 2009

Some keen volunteers about to see who's at home in this well used nest box. Note that our boxes are on the shady side of a tree, for coolness in summer.

Seeing the animals so close up is simply entrancing for people of all ages.

It is a powerful motivator to help with protecting these delightful creatures.

A family of Squirrel Gliders snuggled up for the day after a hard night out!

It is often difficult to count how many animals are present, but there are usually enough bits and pieces visible to make a good estimate.

Here we see the very wide fluffy tail, the creamy coloured belly fur, and the slightly concave bridge of the nose, which are all indicators of the threatened Squirrel Gliders.

Nest Boxes for Rare Species

21/22 March

25/26 April

2009

Perhaps you'd like to see some of these beautiful little creatures that we're working to protect up here at Lurg. Our nest box program has been in operation for 11 years now and we'd love to invite you to join us as we do our annual monitoring work.

We have 200 boxes already in place, with Squirrel Gliders and Sugar Gliders nesting in just about all of them! We're even starting to find the distinctive nests of rare Brush Tailed Phascogales, so we're likely to see some of them face to face when we go checking this year!

We'll also be placing some new boxes to help the animals move around the district more easily. The basic problem is an extreme shortage of natural tree hollows because the old trees were heavily cleared decades ago, and the regrowth forests are still far too young to have many hollows.

These extra boxes will provide crucial shelter and breeding sites that are absolutely the bottom line to support a growing population.

After dark we'll be spotlighting to search for wildlife in several of our oldest planting sites. With binoculars at the ready we get delightful views of the nightlife as they forage through the tree tops, and sometimes we are lucky enough to see the rare Squirrel Gliders in action.

Do come and join us. You'll be helping the wildlife for sure, and it's a first rate opportunity to enjoy some close contact with nature. It's also a good opportunity for you and your friends to meet some new people, while you're all having some fun together in the great outdoors.

Why do we need nest boxes?

It's pretty simple really; much of the regrowth bush in Lurg is still too young to have hollow branches, so the wildlife don't have enough holes for shelter and breeding. Rare species like Squirrel Gliders and Brush Tailed Phascogales need all the help they can get!

Why check them every year?

Regular checking is important so that we can find the extent of local populations, the habitats they prefer, the breeding success of particular colonies, and barriers to their movement across the landscape. We also need to get accurate reports of unwanted species (such as feral bees) taking over our boxes, so that we can remove them at a later date.

How do we use the results?

Results from several years have given conclusive evidence that gliders need the fertile soils along creeks to breed successfully. Our records also show that gliders move out of the dry hills down to the creeks every summer, and they absolutely need continuous corridors to do this safely.

So any major breaks in the tree cover along roadsides or creeks, become serious barriers to glider populations. Isolated 'islands' of habitat have proven empty, because the gliders have been hunted out and they haven't replaced themselves! Solid information like this makes it possible to know what needs doing and also where to act in order to make the most difference with our efforts.

Bush navigation

These weekends provide an excellent opportunity for bush walkers to practise their map reading and navigation skills while looking for the nest boxes. The sites are all mapped carefully on 1:25,000 contour maps, with AMG references and brief location descriptions.

GPS fixes

Most of the box locations have been recorded by GPS, so future groups can find the boxes more easily. If you can bring a GPS unit, it will help confirm some locations that are a bit uncertain. We will be using the GDA 1994 co-ordinate system from now on, to better utilise the new digital maps available.

Miss CSU

How do you do, dear students?

I am the Miss CSU. My profession lies in the task of diligently searching and relentlessly pursuing the facts of what is really happening in this world. From the tall skyscrapers of dear London to the red soiled plains of Australia, I am on the scent of news. I also do a bit of ladylike snooping around the CSU campuses to uncover any suspicious behaviour and thus protect the interests of the poor sweet students who try so hard to be clever. So, down to business:

CSU News: Alas and alack, why are the lawns of the campus grounds dead? My dear, the only outwardly sign that this university is somewhat sophisticated is the neat green grass. Nothing is so endearing to poor students than the soft feel of grass while they sit down to study in the sun. Being environmentally friendly includes having well nurtured grass, I'm sure, and as Mother Nature has no intention of sending rain, please water the lawns without fail.

World News: World economic crisis? Hogwash. In times like these, the rich become richer and the poor become poorer. And Mr Rudd pretends to be Robin Hood wearing glasses, when it is clear he is a clean-shaven Ned Kelly in a pub burning down around his ears. In the meantime the skint little students are forced to pay $120 for books that they don't really require. Dear students, go to www.textbookexchange.com.au and get the books at less than half the price. Don't thank me.

Did You Hear about the robbery in Britain? The gang, very cleverly, broke into the flat above the Royal Bank of Scotland, drilled a hold through the floor and jump down to steal the cash – into an empty office! By the time they had climbed out and found the correct place, it was too late to continue the robbery. Away they went, as Britain's Worst bank robbers.

I must be off, it's time for afternoon tea. For those pleasant sort of students that exist, please send me an email about whatever news, questions, and stories you have.

"It is absurd to divide people into good and bad. People are either charming or tedious." - Oscar Wilde

Yours Truly,

Miss CSU

12 – 14 March

Melbourne Playback Theatre Company has been presenting dynamic improvised theatre for over 25 years. In a specially designed presentation for Border audiences, sitting among your friends and community, you have the chance to share opinions, reflections and experiences and then see highly skilled performers transform these stories into theatre that is powerful, poignant, evocative and delightful. Or you can simply sit and observe as the stories of others come to life. There will be four performances, each taking a season as its springboard: Autumn (on Thursday), Winter (Friday), Spring (Saturday matinee) and Summer (Saturday night). Come to one performance or follow the complete cycle by attending all shows. What's too hot to handle in your life? What chills your bones? What's dropping away? Or what's flowering or beginning to bud?

“There is a common thread to the magic of their work – the ability to understand what is not said, and then reflect those inner thoughts and emotions back in a positive and uplifting way.” – Carlton & United Breweries
