My dear Benjamin

I received your letter this afternoon with father's enclosed, & am answering them both at once, as they ought to go tomorrow to catch the mail to Croinbil. & this is a stormy cold night wind blowing a gale again

We are allowed to light the gas from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 10. P.M.

So we have a gas fire to warm the room

I also had a letter from Mrs West

She says that Hoyle is an old man & respectable & is in Charge of Glenloch.
I do not suppose Mr Beasly will allow that letter to be seen; perhaps if he had gone up to see Jim Jim things might have been different, but Jim is at peace now for fellows.

Mrs Dent sent me a paper, from it Jim's Cheques to the Bank had been returned to him, & had worried him, & no money had come out from Holland just lately.
Something to that effect. I am tired perhaps Mrs Dent said so.

either the paper or she did.
Don't hurry to insist just in a little Colonel Miller is in Melbourne in a little while, & things are very very upset in Sydney no one too bright just yet. When hearing is over, try, get father to take you up to I mean began in the Car & & see to things a little, if it's not too cold for father but go so with him, then you would be alone, unless she went too.

I am sorry to hear that the Coo have died like that. It must be well.

Some people think that soon Johnny will be in darkness, & lots of people are buying lamps, & now the Government have taken all horses & carts. But you see they are having big strikes in England too.

Tom Jack he is easier, he looks well in the face & is terribly heavy.

I heard from Mrs Atkinson, she says Ted's Chum who is a Captain in the Anti aircraft has been shot through the thigh & leg. Mrs Atkinson, & she is so uncertain about Ted.

I see Mr Bucknell & Jim Jass is in Johnny driving a lorry, & Mr Marray on the wharf they are all working hard. We hear that the men say they will not give in until the Card system is removed, as we do not know what the end of things will be. Father will miss you terribly, as all you can do in time before you
